An Fastern Reporter on the Indianapelis Pelice Force.

A Pinkerton Detective's Opinion-The Record of the Criminal Court -The St Louis Idea.

"By the way," said a newspaper correspondent and editor, who was recently visiting friends in this city, on his return home to Pennsylvania from New Orleans and a tour of the South, "your police force is the subject of no little comment East and South. You have relieved many cities of some of their worst characters by capturing and sending them to prison when they have visited Indianapolis, The papers frequently contain local mention of certain men well known to the writers, as having at last gone to prison from Indianapolis. If you could stand away from your home as I have been doing, you would know better how true this is. The New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and even Boston papers have frequently referred to the force of Ininal and the inability of their own police to exp-"You seem to know something of police and their work as well as of politics and expositions," "Any person who reads the papers knows these things, was the response. "Look at a base ball club. If it is at the bottom of the list of lengue teams, every man who ever attends the games as well as he ksows the the champion club. Men who watch police work-and all newspaper men ocan tell you where the best forces are maintained and what is their secret of success and failure." "Certainly. A prominent man in my town went wrong, and was believed to have gone to Chicago. Chicago has a fine force in many respects, but there is too much red tape in the system. However, word was telegraphed to the chief for his arrest, but it did no good. Response was made that he was not in the city. Three days later he came in and gave himself up. Where the police are so slow is it any wonder that our correspondent there in reply to a telegram asking for partie i lars said he had not been arrested? Yes, and more than that, it is actually asserted that the chief did not know of it himself until a man was sent over to bring the prisoner back ' 'That's a pretty tought story.'

"But it's true, though. The police force of a city, like every other organized institution in a city, is a reflex of the character of the town. Chicago used to be a fast place. It is becoming sluggish. Look at Cincinnati. With all of her differences among those controlling the force, and the lack of system and a rigid prosecution of violators of the law, is it any wonder that at one time the jail of Hamilton County contained twenty-three murderers? Is it any wonder that the elequence of a great criminal lawyer turned a jury and a young murder's escape from the gallows caused a three days' riot in the city, the destruction of the Court-house, and the loss of many lives, and compelled the sending down to that corner of the State nearly all the military of the State before the terrible battle was ended?"

"But our Criminal Court is a great factor in all this work.' your Criminal Judge is not to be turned from the strict administration of his office by the blandishments of the friends of pris-oners. I understand that in the past jear 124 prisoners have gone North, besides fortyeight boys who have been sent to the Reform School. To be plain and still conservative, your police force is not large enough by at least one half; but it is neatly dressed, made up of perfec types of physical men, and no one ever accus s the men of standing in with thieves. So much can not be said of other forces over the country. A Pinkerton detective recently told me the Indianapolis police force is doing better work than the force of any other city in the Union. By the way, one of your men went to Cincinnati the other day to get a prisoner and isiled to bring him back because of an alleged defect in the requisi-tion papers. This was remedied, and then the officers of that city damanded the identification of the prisoner, which was also done. Then they re-fused to allow him to be brought here. Your offi-cer hit them harder than he knew when he re-marked: 'All right, gentlemen. I am not sur-prised at the riot you had here last year."

"What is the trouble with other forces?" "Too much polities. The men would all do better, but the political system they are compelled to serve keeps them in check. One of the officers of my town rracked a quantity of stolen goods to St. Louis recently. He got a policeman detailed to go down the street with him, and soon located the goods in a house kept by a gang of thieres. The visiting officer wanted to go in and secure the goods, but his efficient assistant said no-that a warrant must be put in the hauds of a Constable to be served. Of course, the goods never came back. St Louis is a good town for thieves and cut-throats, but a poor place for police. The same officers saw a thief across the street snatch a pocketbook from a collecting clerk. The crowd raised a cry and started in pursuit, but the St. Louis policeman did not join in the pursuit. No, he stepped into a store and telephoned to headquarters the facts, and actually gave the direction the thief took. They probably faited to cated him."

'How about Louisville "Louisville is a little better, but the same trouble is to be found there. Too much red tape, too much politics. Occasionally, however, a spasm o virtue causes a general cleaning out of the dens of vice in certain sections, and for several weeks at a time there is peace and qu'et in the town; but the old order of things soon comes back, and again Ephraim is joined to his idols."
